the Irish-American citizens of New York have shown such general and active interest in making the holiday gennine and universal, and the celebration of March 17, 1800, promises to go down into history as one of the most memorable on record. There was a St. Patrick feeling is the air before suarise, which at noon became so pronounced that every one caught the infection, and to night there will be enough of it to go all around an unlimited number of times and to spare.

Even the professional weather juggiers have gone back on their traditional reputation for meanness on St. Patrick's Day,

THE LINE OF MARCH.

The line of march, which is to be taken up at 10 'clock sharp, is as follows:

Up Fifth avanue to Thirteenth street, to Broadway, to Fourteenth street, around Washington's statue, to Broadway, to Seventeenth street, to Fronth avenue, to Eighteenth street, to Fifth avenue, to Eighteenth street, to Fifth avenue, to Fifty-seventh street, to Eastern Boule, vard, to Jonee's Wood, where the feativities will be prolonged indefinitely.

Mayor Grant and the city authorities, including the members of the Board of Aldermen, and many of the heads of departments will be on the grand sand at Seventeenth street, with a throng of guesta, to review the procession.

The cottage was elaborately frimmed

President Convention of Iriah Societies, with flags and bunting, and the National and Irish colors intertwined. There were many ladies on the stand, and all the streets in the vicenity of the square were peaked with sight-scere long before the procession started.

PORMING THE PROCESSION. At Washington Square there was a big crowd at noon watching the formation of the procession, and all up along Fifth avenue every vantage point was taken possession of by the throngs which poured in from all parts of the town eager to secure the best places for witnessing the great speciacle.

AT JONES'S WOOD. The festivities at Jones's Wood this afternoon will consist principally of athletic games and snorts of various kinds, to be followed by dancing in the evening. There will also be speeches by prominent fethmen in honor of the day, the principal orator announced being Rev. Dr. P. Dillon, of Newark.

are dispitaged on all the street care, and the stampork is worn on the breasts of all who love the "old and" and its memories.

Two great parades were the features of the day's celebration. Thirty-nine divisions of the Ancient Order of Hiberniana, with flags and banners, led by Grand Marshal Matthew Smith, and accompanied by many bands of music playing Irish airs, marched from Fort Greene plama at 11 o'clock down Myrtle avanue to the City Hall, where Mayor Chapin and the Aldermen reviewed them as they peased on into Fulton street, and thence to Myrtle and Vanderbilt avenues, where cars were boarded and they were conveyed to Ridgewood Park.

There a festival is in progress, and the Mayor and other prominent officials will attend and deliver addresses appropriate to the occasion.

The Convention of Irish Societies, comprising thirty-six divisions, started from Bedford and Division avenues at 11 o'clock, under the leadership of Grand Marshal Peter P. Mesde, and marched down to the City Hall, via Bedford, willoushby, Classon and Myrtle avenues. After passing in review before the Mayor and other city officials the procession moved into Fulton street, thence to Joralemon, to Court, to Nelson, to Columbia, to Atlantic avenue and to Fourth avenue, where it dispersed.

Prominent in the line were Company A. of the Hibernian Riffes, Cant. Byrne. 100 strong, and a company of marines, under command of Capt. Enright. The officers of the Convention rode in carriages, decorated with green flags and other Irish emblems.

Both processions were greeted on the routes by thousands of men, women and children, who cheered and applanded as they passed.

The festivities of to-night will include the forty-first annual dinner of the St. Passets's Society of Brooklys, in the Assubby Recome of the Academy of Music. President John C. McGuire will deliver the address of welcome, and the sonals will be responded to as follows: "The Danis O'Brien: "The Press and Irish Politics," St. Clair McKelway: "The State of New York," W. F.
